American Airlines in the black for the first 3 months of 2013

$8 Million is the profit for the first quarter this year for American Airlines. The airline counted for $6.1 billion in revenue for the first quarter - what management said is impressive.

American Airlines is finalizing their bankruptcy process.

The airline is also in the process to merge with the current Star Alliance and rival United Airlines partner US Airways.

Expenses for the restructuring and the upcoming merger with US Airways are not calculated in the profit and loss calculation.

Such charges would exceed $349 million and eliminate the profit announced by the company yesterday.
